TO THE MEMBERS OF THE CLASS OF 1912:

The Second Class Report attempts to present to you as accurate information as is now obtainable concerning the members of 1912 since graduation.

As the report goes to press, it appears that 16 members are engaged in architecture; 31 in banking; 4 in diplomatic service; 5 in engineering; 10 in farming; 4 in forestry; 2 in government service; 10 in journalism; 64 in law; 10 in library work; 48 in manufacturing; 33 in medicine; 3 in military service; 5 in music; 2 in publishing; 5 in railroad-ing; 3 in social service work; 61 in teaching; and 155 in miscellaneous occupations.

107 members have married and there are so far 44 class children, 27 daughters and 17 sons. The Class cradle was presented to Robert James Woolverton, whose picture appears as a Frontispiece to this Report.

It further appears that the Class is represented today in our own country, in 38 states, Hawaii and Porto Rico; in other American countries, in the Argentine Republic, Canada and Cuba; in Europe, in England, France, Russia, and Turkey; and in the Far East, in Burma, China, India and Japan.

Eight of our members are now in Europe in connection with the war, one of them enlisted in the British army.

These figures show how widely we have scattered and how diversified our interests have become. It is the aim of your Class Committee to keep track of every member of the Class, and to do this the coöperation of all is vital. Let me urge upon you then in closing, in behalf of the committee, to notify me always at the earliest possible moment of any changes in permanent address, or occupation, as well as marriages, births or any other information suitable for the Class Records.

The Class owes thanks to Adolphus Terry, to the College office, and to Messrs. McCarter & Kneeland for their aid in the preparation of this report.

R. B. WIGGLESWORTH.

†The “Loan to Photographic Committee” may never be repaid, but is shown as an asset at the present time in the hope that several “albums” may be sold this June. This item will be written off in the next report.

The total pledge amounts to $15,319 from 422 members of the class. Of this there is due $2,675 on unpaid pledges to date, which sum is very large, and I hope the members of the class will make every effort to reduce this item. Several members have paid their whole pledge, from which the class receives an appreciable amount in interest, while these members are relieved from further notices.

The "gift" account grows slowly, but steadily, and I hope members will remember this, and not hesitate to add to it at any time.

The Treasurer's books will be open for inspection by any member of the class during Triennial Week at my office, 33 Congress Street.

Please allow me again to express my personal gratitude for the widespread, generous and quick response which my notices have received.

Respectfully submitted,

RALPH LOWELL, Treasurer.

OBITUARIES

WARREN BARD, son of George Washington and Irene Rebeeca (Wummer) Bard, was born in Reading, Pa., April 10, 1888, and was educated in the public schools of that place. He prepared for Harvard College at the Boys' High School and was admitted into the class of 1912. At the age of twenty-two while home for his vacation at the end of the sophomore year, he was drowned in the Schuylkill River while canoeing. While in college he specialized in English and foreign languages.

R. L. B.

THOMAS SAVAGE BOWLES. The sudden death of Thomas Savage Bowles in his twenty-second year is deeply felt, not only in Cambridge and Boston, but also in this village, where he has been known and loved by old and young from his earliest childhood. Tom Bowles was endowed with warm affections and a sound, clean mind. His inexhaustible good spirits, which fascinated his associates, were not the superficial playfulness of youth. They had their source in a disposition at once amiable, vivacious, and sensitive. He was quick to respond to whatever was genuine and kindly in his fellow-creatures. His keen sense of humor sprang from what may be called an innate appreciation of values. He had an instinctive sympathy with human nature, and remarkable clearness of vision in distinguishing the false from the true. Tom was sincere to the bottom of his heart. What he thought, he said, and all manner of evasion and cheap complaisance was abhorrent to him. But I never knew anybody who was readier to listen to reason, readier to see the other side of a question. He had no pride of opinion. With him to hear a proposition that ran counter to his ideas was to consider it dispassionately, no matter how strongly his feelings had been enlisted in the opposite quarter. Thus his temper was essentially judicial. These qualities, combined with a zealous thirst for knowledge, made him a student of a fine type,—the kind of student that it is a pleasure to have under one's instruction. His intellectual independence was refreshing. He did not subject his judgment slavishly to authority, as many do without being aware of it. But, on the other hand, he took it for granted that his teachers were wiser than he, and so he met them more than half-way. His mental interests were broad and varied. His capacity for absorption in serious subjects was unusual. Life was a pleasant thing to Tom Bowles. The world was full of opportunities for wholesome diversion, and he had a rare talent for enjoyment and for making others enjoy themselves. But life was also a grave and momentous thing. He felt his responsibilities profoundly,—more profoundly than many who are always talking about them. What he could make of his future,—what he was to do with the powers that God had given him,—this was a question which occupied him much, as I happen to know, during the last two years of his life. He put a modest estimate on his abilities; but he was too clear-headed not to see that there was a particular work in the world for him—a work that nobody else could do—and he was eager to find out what it was. His college course, he felt, was the time granted him for solving this problem, the experimental time,—and he was quietly and steadily advancing toward its solution. How he would finally have answered the question we cannot tell. But that he would have answered it worthily none of us can doubt. And therefore our sense of bereavement is not only personal, but general. We have lost a friend and companion whom we loved, and the world has lost a man.

OBITUARIES

G. L. K.

ROLAND ANDREWS FILES, son of Gershom Skillings Files and Emma Augusta Andrews, was born November 5, 1891, at Roxbury, Massachusetts. He received his early education in the Roxbury elementary schools and in the Roxbury High School, and entered Harvard in 1908. Here he completed his work for the degree of A.B. cum laude in three years, at the age of twenty; and in the following year entered the

HARVARD COLLEGE—CLASS OF 1912

Harvard Law School. In April, 1912, however, he abandoned his law course temporarily to teach in the Coit School at Munich, Bavaria, and to widen his experience by travel. In Munich he made many friends who desired him to stay; but home was to him the sweetest place on earth, and he could not remain long away from it. He returned to Boston in July, 1913. Barely one month later he met a tragic death by drowning at Island Heights, New Jersey, August 20, 1913. As a boy he had dreamed and talked of becoming a lawyer like the hero Lincoln, whom he revered. Everything had pointed finally to a successful and noble career. But in the glow of youth and well-founded hope, he was gone. There are many who will miss his affectionate and lovable presence, for in friendship he was highly gifted. His manly, loyal, earnest, and splendid character is an inspiration to those who knew him best, and if this be the touchstone of success, he cannot be called other than successful. All the while he lived he preserved a love of truth, high ideals of righteousness, and clear purity of soul.

H. G. F.

MAURICE MACPHERSON, son of Isaac and Ella Rebecca (Weaver) MacPherson, was born at Bridgeton, N. J., June 7, 1888. He prepared for Harvard at the Cambridge Latin School, and while there associated himself with the Dramatic Organization. While in Harvard he took an active part in his class athletics, and played on the musical clubs. He was also a member of the Triangle Club. Following a sudden illness, he died at the Stillman Infirmary, May 13, 1910, during his sophomore year. He was unassuming and kindly toward all, and much beloved by his classmates.

W. MACP.

EDWARD JAMES BARNES PALMER was born in Boston, Mass., October 3, 1886. He was the only son of Rev. Charles James Palmer (an Episcopal clergyman) and Gertrude S. Barnes of Lanesborough, Mass. He lived in Lanesborough practically his entire life up to the time of his entering college. He was educated in the common schools of Lanesborough; also attended Professor A. J. Clough's private school in Pittsfield, Mass., and the Pittsfield High School, where he was graduated in 1907. He also took a brief course in the Berkshire Business College. He had been early drawn to Physics and Chemistry, in which he specialized with marked success. His original intention was to enter the General Electric Works in Pittsfield, but he was advised to secure a more comprehensive education in Physics and Chemistry. His ambition was that of leadership in his chosen profession. As a special student in the Class of 1911, he entered Bowdoin College, giving special attention to Physics and Chemistry. He also attended the sessions of the Harvard Summer School. These studies led to an enlarged vision and he determined to enter on a complete college course, and in 1909 was admitted to the Sophomore Class at Harvard, where he remained for three years, giving particular attention to Chemistry, but by no means neglecting collateral studies. One of the Matthews Scholarships he was awarded in 1910 and also in 1911. He received the degree of Bachelor of Science on Commencement Day, 1912. In the autumn he was invited to a position as Assistant Professor of Chemistry at Allegheny College, Meadville, Pa., where he rapidly won friends and was spoken of as a "Master Chemist." He was looking forward to taking the higher degrees in Science, and bid fair to achieve great distinction in his chosen field. But all his plans and hopes were blasted by his being seized with typhoid fever in a malignant form, from which disease he died April 3, 1913.
